I - 1000 BF ⚡

Chinvat was the world where the sovereign Azgaryk lived. Initially, a world very similar to The World. Until this one summoned an evil spirit known as Marbas and made a deal with him.

By which, he lived until his son, Alexis, ascended to the throne. Azgaryk died and the evil spirit appeared to his son, to claim from him what his father had promised it. The deal, turned out to be the life of his son and the demon, killed the new emperor. Thus becoming the new sovereign of Andra, the former empire that once ruled Azgaryk.

Even so, the people rebelled against the demon government. And this one summoned another, called Berith who brought with him a mercenary army from another world which led with which he crushed the rebel forces in brutal ways. Such that, people began to nickname it as the Crimson Sovereign. But Marbas wanted more, so he sent him to conquer the neighboring kingdoms until a point was reached, after several hundred years, when Berith ended up conquering all the continents of the world.

But Marbas, instead of giving Berith his reward, the perfect weapon, tried to betray him drew out a vial filled with plague bile who tried to throw him in the face in order to infect him and kill him but Berith after so many years knew Marbas very well and expected a betrayal from his part. So before the vial could reach him, he opened a portal to another world and left.

Yet ill luck would have it that while he was fleeing, a gale came flying out of his open portal. It opened the window to Marbas' throne room and spread the plague bile out over the entire world.

Because of the infection, shortly after, the Marbas empire fell and ended up disappearing, unleashing the so-called Dark Age upon the world. In which multiple conflicts, wars and disasters followed one another as the plague advanced only bringing misery and destruction.

Ever since Marbas has dwelled in a tower standing above a continent of dead bodies and beasts transformed by the plague. And Berith, still calling himself the Crimson Sovereign, wanders from world to world as a mercenary. Searching for vengeance.

Unknown Time ⚡

According to the legends surviving after the fall of mankind. The demon-god Yrrhedes abducted a human woman, who would give birth to Marbas and prophesy his rise to power.

It would also be during this unknown time that the tower would be built by an unknown civilisation (probably the Grigori). Although it is speculated that its function is similar to that of the Tower of the Swallow. It stood out for its pure white colour.

Relationship with other worlds ⚡

Beyond the elven emigration during the Second Conjunction and some of the sea monsters, which emerged as abominations, that witches of the Crane School had to deal with, Chinvat, too, was affected by The First Conjunction, having a relationship with worlds such as Tir na NÓg that moulded it into what it later became.

An example of this was the amount of ether that entered and its violent collision with other spheres, which would end up shaping it into a large ring world with a large amount of magic (something that would affect the power of The Plague, for example)

Also, it would make creatures like the Fey / Grigori hybrid known as Mía Áiné to have a presence and be trapped there.

Geography of the world ⚒

By becoming a ring world. Its geography is quite different from other worlds, possessing large oceans and continents, with different biomes. Some unique to that universe. And before the fall of civilisation, a great variety of peoples, cultures and races which were united under Marbas.

After the collapse, much of this was lost. Including, the original names of its geography and the original people who inhabited it fell into oblivion, becoming grotesque versions of what they once were.

Among the elves, there are rumours, that at the edges of the world, there is a huge magical barrier, which prevents it from somehow being destroyed.

Fauna ⚒

Molded by the large amount of ether and violent collisions during the First Conjunction, the fauna present in Chinvat, was (at least until The Plague) very varied from dinosaurs, megafauna, birds that evolved in unique ways, coming from distant parts of the multiverse to impossible hybrids, such as horned hinny.

Due to the enormous space it ended up possessing, also composed of some fragments of destroyed worlds, there was a very large, complex and varied ecological niche.

Relation with The World

Their relationship with the world is limited to more than being one of the many worlds that crossed during the Conjunction of the Spheres and liberated several monsters / beasts in The World.

Although some legends talk about how some sorcerers of this world managed to escape from this world to The World and gave information about their original world and Berith to warn about the threat to other worlds.

It would be in this year in The World of The Continent, that elves of all ethnicities (with the exception of a few on the East Coast of the Western Continent) would migrate to this world. An event, which would become known as The Punara (rough translation of the Old Language dialect in Chinvat as "Flourishing / New Beginning")

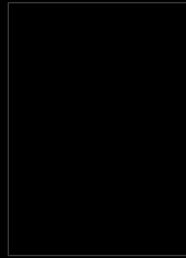

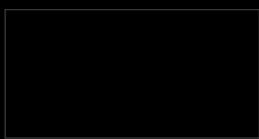

Notable races

- Humans (Until The Plague)
- Elves
- Demons
- Fallen Stars (counterpart of demons in this world)
- Ilombas

Trivia ↴

- Chinvat is the name of the Marbas united world / empire.
- The name Chinvat is taken from a concept of Zoroastrianism.
- Some of the names are references to Disney kingdoms. The idea with these, would be to make a dark parody / version of them in this world.
- Because of the "Dark Ages" that plague this world. This world would not be medieval Grimdark fantasy. But essentially, because of the plague, it would have regressed to a world equivalent to the Ancient / Bronze Ages and the elves would have had to adapt to that.
- Abominations is the name of the humans (and other creatures) who were infected by The Plague (they are also a reference to eldritch abominations from H.P Lovecraft works)
- Chinvat is also inspired by various works of Stephen King.
- Chinvat also have some references to Zothique but with a more "happy ending"
- The Aen Manche elves would evolve into something inspired by the Fremen of Dune.
- The part where the elves settled, at least, would be mostly desert, because of the collapse, with some wooded areas. Something similar to Australia.
- The reference to the birds is a direct reference to the speculative evolution project known as Serina.
- Horned hinny are a reference to Elden Ring's Torrent.
- Chinvat would also have a more general inspiration from the world of Elden Ring.

Notes ↴

- The world known as Chivat is a purely fanon creation as such there is no official proof of its existence in the Witcher works outside the fanon community.
